Understanding 8 U.S.C. §§ 1373 and 1644: Communication between government agencies and immigration authorities

8 U.S.C. §§ 1373 and 1644 are sections of the United States Code that address communication between government agencies and immigration authorities regarding an individual's immigration status.

8 U.S.C. § 1373

This section, enacted as part of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996, aims to prevent state and local governments from hindering information sharing between government entities and the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service (now primarily U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement - ICE) concerning the immigration status of individuals.

Section 1373(a) and (b) broadly prohibit federal, state, and local entities from restricting the sending or receiving of information about an individual's citizenship or immigration status to or from federal immigration authorities or other government entities. Additionally, § 1373(c) requires federal immigration authorities to respond to inquiries from other agencies about an individual's immigration status.

8 U.S.C. § 1644

Enacted as part of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996, this section reinforces that state and local governments cannot be prevented from sharing information about an alien's immigration status with federal immigration authorities.

Key aspects and considerations

- Sanctuary Policies: These sections are relevant to the discussion of "sanctuary cities," which may have policies that limit cooperation with federal immigration enforcement, potentially conflicting with §§ 1373 and 1644.
- Tenth Amendment Challenges: The constitutionality of these sections has been questioned based on the Tenth Amendment, though legal interpretations vary.
